POULTRY SHOW A BIG SUCCESS

First Exhibition is One of Success Gratifying to All in Project.

The closing day of the Smithfield poultry show was the banner day. The attendance was far above anticipations. All were surprised at the large entries and the fancy quality of the stock, as this was the first show, and all are enthusiastic over the chicken industry and anticipate a good show next year.

Mr. Wick Hathaway, of Madison, O., was the judge, and his work was satisfactory in every way.

Awards for the special prizes were as follows:
Association cup valued at $11.75, was won by Henry Bennett, of Brown, on highest scoring pen in show, S. C. W. Leghorns. Average $2 1-2.

There was distributed in cash and merchandise among the large number of winners $145.00.

The winners of blue ribbons were very much pleased as there was some very close competition in some classes.

Quite a bit of surprise was caused by the judge saying that a Red Pyle Game Cockerel exhibited in the show was worth $125.00.

At a meeting of the association after the close of the show, the officers for the ensuing year were elected.

A. L. Chambers was re-elected president; E. R. Cunningham, secretary, and M. M. Brundage, show superintendent.

A great deal of interest was manifested in the show and the association is well pleased with its first exhibition.

Protect Your Family

It is a solemn fact that thousands of explosions in kitchen hot water systems occur every year in the United States, with more or less serious results. In one little town in Connecticut of 500 inhabitants seven explosions from the same cause occurred last winter.

CAUSE OF EXPLOSION.

It was while watching a tea kettle on a kitchen stove that Watt made the discovery of the expansive force of steam. He noticed, when he closed the spout of the kettle, that when the water reached the boiling point the steam thus generated blew off the cover. If the cover is made fast and there is no other escape an explosion occurs.

PREVENTION.

Do you know that every pressure boiler of any description has a safety valve, so called? Of course you know it and you know the reason why. Simply because steam, so useful when under control, is so dangerous when beyond control. The engineer does not intend to allow his steam to rise beyond a point of safety, but he has an automatic safety valve in case it does. You do not intend to have obstructions of ice, rust or anything else in the supply pipes of your kitchen boiler, but they do get there and cause damage unless you have some kind of a safety appliance.

You do not require the same safety valve that is used on the pressure boiler, but one that is simple, cheap, and not likely to get out of order. The Simplex Safety Valve is so simple that it can be attached in ten minutes' time. It is made of brass and will not rust, and will last as long as the boiler itself, and if the circulation stops, the Simplex Safety Valve automatically opens and all danger of explosion and loss of life is avoided.

The fact that you never have had trouble of the kind described does not preclude the possibility of having it. You may never have lost your house by fire, but you carry fire insurance. Why? Because it is a matter of common knowledge that houses do burn down. The same publicity is not given to the breaking of a water back, or boiler as to the burning of a house, and if you do not know personally of the frequency of broken water backs, ask your plumber. Insure against the possibility of an explosion in your home by equipping your hot water system with some kind of safety appliance. The Simplex Safety Valve will give you this insurance. We are sole agents for the Simplex Safety Valve in Clarksburg.

A Finical Lawyer

A Judge, noted for business and ill-smelling feet, sat with them elevated on the railing, his head chucked down between his shoulders in front of an irritable lawyer, who, becoming exasperated by this attitude of the judge, queried:

"May I ask which end of your honor I am to address?"

"Whichever you choose," drawled the judge.

Well was the retort if you haven't sense enough to go to the FOOT SPECIALIST, over Parsons-Sanders store, and have those horrible feet attended to I may as well address one end as the other."
